Man's Body Not Found In Potomac

CPYRGHT

WASHINGTON (AP)—A search of the Potomac River rapids failed Sunday to locate the body of a Central Intelligence Agency employee believed drowned Saturday in what his wife described to police as a suicide pact.

Police and firemen from Fairfax County, Va., and Montgomery County, Md., dragged both sides of the rocky stretch of river at Great Falls, 12 miles above Washington, without finding James A. Woodbury, 32.

Mrs. Woodbury, 32, rescued from a rocky ledge to which she had been swept by the swirling waters, told police she and her husband jumped in together, hand in hand, because of the pressure of his work. She was under observation in Arlington Hospital, where authorities said she was uninjured but emotionally disturbed.

Neighbors said the Woodburys and their two boys, Jeff, 10, and Parris, 8, returned only a few days before the tragedy to their home in Germany.
